

Seeking permission to dump hazardous materials at Dixon landfill

By WAYNE LYON

Rock River Sanitation Inc., which leases the landfill in Green River Industrial Park from the City of Dixon, is seeking to open an additional 20 acres at the site specifically for the dumping of hazardous materials.

The request was made as the firm started preliminary negotiations with the Dixon City Council for exercising a 10-year lease option early.

Marvin Van Weelden, owner of the sanitation firm, and Attorney James Allen told members of the council soil tests had indicated the 20-acre site has blue clay, considered right by the Illinois State Environmental Protection Agency for dumping chemical wastes.

Van Weelden refused to say exactly what hazardous materials he intended to dispose of, commenting only

"Some soap detergents are considered hazardous by EPA standards."

When the word cyanide was mentioned by a council member, Van Weelden replied, "There are a lot of kinds of cyanide. There are even cyanide compounds in some of the food we eat."

Van Weelden would only say the materials would be industrial wastes.

He explained that not more than seven or eight sites in the state are being considered for the dumping of such materials and the Dixon landfill is one of them. Some industrial firms are having to truck the substances to the Chicago area or to Indiana for disposal now, he related.

Further questioning revealed the wastes would be sealed in 60-gallon metal barrels, would be buried deeper than other refuse at the site and not be compacted as all of the refuse at the landfill is now.

Van Weelden explained that the EPA would very carefully supervise the operation and water tests would be made on a frequent basis.

"The blue clay is supposed to contain seepage as the barrels decompose," he added.

The firm's first two years on the lease agreement will not end until January 1976. At that time there is an option to renew the lease for ten years.

The firm pays the city $500 per month for the lease and an additional $250 per month for the lease of the city's equipment at the site.

The request for early renewal was being made, Van Weelden said, because repairs are needed to the crane, or a new one must be purchased. Under the lease agreement the firm maintains the city equipment.

If the lease is renewed, the firm will buy the equipment, with the money paid so far for leasing it applied to the purchase price. The equipment was appraised prior to the original agreement.

Van Weelden explained he may have to purchase a new crane and if he is going to commit the firm to such a major expenditure he felt the ten-year lease agreement should be early.

Under the terms of the original lease only 35 acres were set aside for use. Any additional land use is subject to council approval. That is why permission is being sought to open the 20-acre site requested for the hazardous materials.

Will fight defense cuts and for energy plan, Ford tells cadets

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Congress should approve his full defense budget and enact a program for U.S. energy independence to show the world that "Americans have lost neither their nerve nor their national will," President Ford said today.

Ford, just back from talks with European leaders, told the graduating class at the U.S. Military Academy he would fight hard to prevent any cuts in the $94-billion defense budget he has proposed for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

"I believe the American people want a defense posture that is second to none," Ford told the 849-member graduating class during commencement exercises at Michie Stadium.

He said enactment of "our bedrock defense budget" and a 10-year program to make the nation independent of foreign oil would be a "convincing demonstration to our allies and to our adversaries that Americans have lost neither their nerve nor their national will."

Ford's speech to the cadets came only hours after his return at 1 a.m. today from a weeklong trip to Europe during which he conferred with 22 heads of state.

The President waited until later in the day to meet with his Cabinet and congressional leaders at the White House to fill them in on his trip.

"Our major alliances are strong and firm... our allies' confidence in us is not misplaced," the President said.

Ford became the first president since John F. Kennedy to speak at a Military Academy commencement. Kennedy, a Navy veteran like Ford, was here in 1962.

Elsewhere, Vice President

Nelson A. Rockefeller spoke to the graduating class of the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, Md., and Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger spoke at the Air Force Academy commencement.

As he wound up his speech, the President drew a burst of applause when he reminded "ourselves, our friends and our potential adversaries that Americans are still prepared to pay the price of freedom — that we will honor our commitments — that we will do our duty."

And he concluded: "Let us renew together our Founding Fathers' pledge to our country of our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor. And let us always remember that freedom is never free."

The President handed diplomas to 43 of the cadets, who were in the first five per cent of their class, and to the lowest ranking cadet — termed the "goat" — Eugene Emmett Shaw Jr. of Danville, Ill.

In his report to the cadets, the President said he views peace in the Middle East as "the most serious international issue of our time."

Referring to his talks in Salzburg, Austria with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, Ford added: "The United States is in a unique position to help promote a peaceful solution and I assure you we will make that effort."

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger on Tuesday voiced a similar assessment of Ford's meeting with Sadat.

"We can move into a phase of more specificity" after Ford meets next week with Israeli Premier Yitzhak Rabin in Washington, a senior American official said Tuesday night.

Thompson will run, says Trib

CHICAGO (AP) — U.S. Atty. James R. Thompson will resign his post shortly and announce he is a candidate for the 1976 Republican nomination for governor, the Chicago Tribune said in today's editions.

The Tribune quoted two unnamed Illinois Republicans as saying that details of the announcement would have to come from Thompson. They indicated Thompson was hesitant to discuss his entrance into the race because he is a federal employee subject to provisions of the Hatch Act which bars federal employees from seeking political office.

But, the paper said, Thompson would act quickly before other candidates filled the void left when Atty. Gen. William Scott declined to run for the nomination.

Senate refuses to chop weapons bill by $1.2 billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate overwhelmingly refused today to cut $1.2 billion from a $30.3-billion military weapons procurement and research bill.

The vote was 59 to 36 in the first test of Senate sentiment following a two-day "great debate" on post-Vietnam foreign policy and military posture.

The foreign policy debate, occupied the Senate for nearly 16 hours on Monday and Tuesday, left some senators disappointed and others saying the discussion was useful. The debate centered on American relations with Russia, China, the Middle East, Western Europe, Korea, Panama and other potential trouble spots.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., said the debate was useful in cataloging U.S. foreign policy problems but produced no solutions. Sen. Bill Brock, R-Tenn., voiced frustration with the vagueness that some speakers employed in advocating "new directions" for American foreign policy.

About 20 senators participated at one time or another in the two-day discussion. Most had prepared speeches which they read, then yielded for questions by other senators. Give-and-take debate occurred principally between senators sharing the same viewpoint.

Attendance ranged from seven to 20 senators throughout — fairly good for a period in which no roll call votes were scheduled.

Sens. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Alan Cranston, D-Calif., organized the discussion. Kennedy said they tried to identify the nature of U.S. commitments in various parts of the world.

Kennedy conceded that "we really haven't been able to achieve a precise definition." He complained that some senators "drifted onto the Senate floor, made their comments and drifted off."

Cranston said that although "what was accomplished is not all what we hoped," the debate marked "a magnificent first step" in an effort to bring Congress more participation in forming foreign policy.

At the end, Chairman John C. Stennis, D-Miss., of the Senate Armed Services Committee assured the Senate, in answer to a question by Kennedy, that he knows of no "secret or side agreements" with any foreign government involving the placement of U.S. military forces.

Defending the weapons procurement bill against cuts, Stennis called it a "bone and muscle" bill with the fat already trimmed during the committee's review of Pentagon requests.

The weapons procurement and research bill represents only a fraction of the total $94 billion defense budget.

Israel completes reduction of canal forces

By The Associated Press
Israel completed the thinning out of its forces and firepower near the Suez Canal today but warned that the cuts could be reversed if Egypt makes any hostile move.

"We hope Egypt will not be tempted to take steps that would force us... to withdraw our gesture," Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Allon told the Israeli parliament in reply to opposition criticism of the reduction.

Completion of the pullback a day before Egyptian President Anwar Sadat plans to sail through the canal in a reopening ceremony was announced by Israeli Defense Minister Shimon Peres.

Both Israeli ministers voiced hope that the move would relax tension.

Asked by newsmen if he thought Israel would make similar partial withdrawals on the other fronts with its Arab adversaries, Peres said: "We don't see any major change on any other front that would warrant such a move on our part."

He said the Jordanian and Lebanese fronts were relatively quiet and he didn't think Syria would make any drastic change toward peace.

In Washington, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said President Ford's summit meeting with Sadat may have laid a basis for a new period of Middle East diplomacy.

"I'm not saying there is going to be progress. I'm saying there could be," Kissinger said.

"We can move into a phase of more specificity" after Ford meets with Israeli Premier Yitzhak Rabin in Washington June 11-12, said a senior U.S. official who accompanied Ford on his European trip.

Peres said the partial Israeli withdrawal was "a one-sided move" made without expectation of a reciprocal concession from Egypt. Rabin in a television interview Tuesday renewed the Israeli claim that Egypt agreed as part of the disengagement agreement 18 months ago to allow cargo bound for Israel through the waterway.

He said if Egypt does not honor this pledge, Israel's position in future peace negotiations would be tougher, but "the Israeli reaction would in any case not be military."

After Israel announced it was thinning out its front-line forces as a good-will gesture Sadat indicated cargoes for Israel would be allowed through the canal if Israel made further concessions.

The withdrawal left only 3,500 Israeli troops and 15 tanks in the six-mile-wide, limited forces zone adjoining the United Nations buffer zone between Israeli and Egyptian forces on the east side of the canal.

All Israeli artillery and missiles were pulled back behind the Mitla Pass, at least 18 miles from the canal, and 3,500 troops and 15 tanks were also withdrawn from the front lines. Peres said Israel was taking a risk, but it was a political move that he hoped would be "a real contribution for an additional relaxation in this troubled area."

Demos at dinner for Scott

CHICAGO (AP) — Democrats mingled with Republicans in a $125-a-plate dinner that officials said raised more than $200,000 Tuesday night toward the re-election campaign of Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott.

Scott, who recently announced he would not be the Republican candidate for governor, told the diners: "I haven't seen so many Democrats in this room since Dick Daley had his big dinner."

The fund-raiser was at the International Ballroom of the Conrad Hilton Hotel.

Among the Democrats attending were Sec. of State Michael Howlett and Lt. Gov. Neil F. Hartigan.

The day Rome was liberated

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

On June 4, 1944, a Sunday, U.S. Gen. Mark W. Clark entered Rome—and I entered with him.

Heralded by the password "Elefante," our armored car nosed through the Porta Maggiore while leading elements of the crack U.S. 88th Division stormed into the Piazza Venezia in the center of the city. It was precisely 7:15 p.m.

In the age-old tradition of victors, General Clark mounted the steps of the Campidoglio. It was the two days before "Operation Overlord" (the English Channel crossing) and U.S. Army Chief of Staff Gen. George C. Marshall had directed General Clark to take Rome before then.

The road to Rome was a ghastly battle up Italy's rocky spine in which a million men were engaged on both sides. General Clark told me that, throughout all this, Hitler tried constantly to follow Wellington's lines of the Torres Vedras strategy in Portugal, behind which lines Wellington resisted the Napoleonic French attacks until he was strong enough to turn the tables on the French. But the brave Italian Resistance fighters were also at the Germans' rear.

"Our army is being crippled by a shadow," Nazi Field marshal Albert Kesselring telegraphed Hitler as his army evacuated Rome.

All of ancient Rome was before us, like an abandoned eagle's nest. Who could not see on that June 4 evening an emperor riding out of the city at dark, leaving Rome on the heels of some conspiracy, galloping over the wet stones and then through the woods that in ancient days came close to Rome?

Gen. Mario Presti was Rome's chief of police. He was the personal appointment of Nazi Gestapo chief Heinrich Himmler and General Clark promptly took him into custody; a man with a giant stomach and an enormous black mustache that made him look like a deposed sultan.

Through Presti and the German Army, the cost of harming Germans had gone up along with all prices. The Germans took hostages in the ratio of 10 to 1. For example, when 32 German military police were bombed in a Rome side street called Via Rasella, 320 Italian civilians were taken to the Regina Coeli jail and executed.

Rome had harbored Dr. Johann Koch, Himmler's notorious torture expert. General Clark immediately ordered a search for Koch, but he had fled. He occupied an SS house at Via Principe Amedeo 2 and it was on the top floor there that the most systematic tortures and inquisitions took place.

As you may know, there are catacombs near San Callisto. Koch's victims were transported to these from his house by truck. There they were shot in the back of the neck, one by one. After the victims had been piled in heaps the Gestapo terrorists exploded mines in the San Callisto catacombs. This collapsed the walls. The explosions buried the dead and the dying.

But then on this June 4 liberation day the Italian retaliation came; a time of revenge unequalled since the Roman mobs tossed early papal corpses into the Tiber. General Clark and his American army were utterly powerless to stop it.

The leftover German troops had scattered and gone into hiding. But the mob's fury searched them out. An ancient Roman saying proclaims "Death daily plucks my ear and says 'I am coming.'" The mobs began to move; a monster that could no longer be held back but gave, instead, its roaring hiss and moved forward. The unearthly rumble of feet and voices took over Rome.

I walked with General Clark near the ancient Roman wall in the highest part of Rome's Protestant Cemetery. He searched for a small, simple white slab pressed in the earth: SHELLEY.

In the ground was what was saved of Percy Bysshe Shelley from the pyre on the Viarregio beach. Beside his was his old friend and pirate who had buried him there, Edward John Trelawny.

Shelley sang "Go shout to Rome—at once the paradise, the grave, the city and the wilderness." The Romans said of the Eternal City and of life: "Everything comes, everything goes." And this June 4 is an anniversary of another "everything."

in a full size car which will reduce the risk of personal injury should such an accident occur.

As the Lee County Special Education Association is comprised of six Lee County school districts, each of whom has a Governing Board member represented, the Governing Board directed Mr. Conway to solicit bids and present them to us for approval. This procedure has been followed for the past three years. Apparently, no other dealer can compete with Meador Motors' terms to date and one local dealer made the statement, "Meador's terms are great, take it."

We have been advised that the terms will change for the forthcoming year and if they exceed the equivalent of the 15 cents per mile allowance, the Governing Board will most likely direct Mr. Conway to provide his own transportation.

Hopefully, this letter will answer and dispel any foregone conclusions arrived at from reading the Telegraph's article.

Voice of the people

To the Editor:

In the April 25 issue of the Dixon Evening Telegraph, State Rep. R. E. Brinkmeier had a very comprehensive letter against school consolidation. I hope sensible people read it with appreciation, and will do everything in their power to back him up in fighting against consolidation.

We must consider the welfare of the school children. The closer they are to their homes the better.

Yours truly,
Mrs. Irvin Rapp

To the Editor:

After reading the article by Mr. Ingrassia that appeared on the front page of the Telegraph on Friday, May 30, 1975, regarding the "luxury car" driven by Clint Conway, Director of the Lee County Special Education Association, I feel that a response is in order.

Although the article is factual, it is only part of the story. It failed to clearly state several facts which I feel are important.

First, Mr. Conway drives approximately 20,000 miles per year performing his duties as Director.

If he were driving his own automobile, he would be reimbursed at the rate of 15 cents per mile which would cost the taxpayers $3,000 annually.

Under the lease arrangements to date, Meador Motors has charged 10 cents per mile with no charge for the first 2,000 miles. The taxpayers incur an expense of approximately $2,800 annually covering the lease, license, insurance and gasoline expense.

This arrangement results in a small savings to the taxpayers and assures us that the Director has safe, dependable transportation at all times to fulfill his duties.

In respect to the type of vehicle leased, we are informed by Meador Motors that a "stripped-down" model would be leased at the same terms and he prefers to lease a larger model as there is a better market for this type of automobile when it is returned with low mileage.

The odds are that anyone driving as many miles as Mr. Conway could be involved in an automobile accident. We prefer that he be

Things Dixon Talked About

10 YEARS AGO

The officers and directors of the City National Bank in Dixon will hold a public open house in the newly modernized, refurbished and expanded building which was built in 1926, Saturday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

They and the bank's stockholders cordially invited the general public to inspect the renewed facilities and the added drive-in banking features and customer parking garage.

These improvements have been made at a cost of more than $500,000.

25 YEARS AGO

Striking AF of L bakers in 35

Illinois cities have rejected a wage offer designed to settle their three-week strike. An official canvass at union headquarters in Springfield last night showed a vote of 551 to 336 against acceptance of an agreement of a 10-cent hourly wage boost.

The Dixon Memorial Association today announced that it is seeking donations for carrying on its activities. This year it sponsored the Memorial Day parade and printed a program carrying the names of veterans interred in Dixon cemeteries and listing those killed in action and buried overseas.

50 YEARS AGO

An industry of which very little has been said has developed by leaps and bounds in the vicinity of Dixon and from present indications promises to expand materially in the next few years.

Seventy-four graduates from the Dixon High School, class of 1925, will receive their diplomas at the commencement exercises which will be held at the Assembly Park Auditorium at 8 o'clock Friday evening, and to which all friends and patrons of the schools are invited.

REFLECTIONS—The state election board has been in business for 18 months and to date has been a political football field between the governor and the legislature.

Gov. Dan Walker vetoed the legislation which set up the board but his nix was overridden.

The four leaders of the two major parties in the General Assembly each nominate two persons to serve on the election board and the governor appoints one of the two each party leader nominates.

The members are paid $22,500 per year for part-time work and the chairman receives $25,000.

The present board consists of Mike Lavelle, chairman, a Chicagoan who was nominated by Senate President Cecil Pardee, D-Chicago; Frank Lunding, a Winnetka attorney, a Republican friendly to Lavelle, is in a squabble with Gov. Walker over keeping his seat.

The matter is headed for the State Supreme Court.

Walker fired Lunding because the later refused to file an ethics statement. Lunding went to court claiming the governor could not displace him until his term of office expired. The circuit court agreed with Lunding. The governor is sure to appeal the issue to the high court.

The other two members are William Harris, a Democrat nominated by Clyde Choate, and Don Adams of Springfield, who is chairman of the Republican State Central Committee.

The board has been criticized for having political members and receiving inordinate high salaries and for hiring staff members who are sponsored by legislators.

Considering, it is the arm of the state which is charged to assure citizens their constitutional right to participate in government by voting is preserved and is such a political machine, one must wonder how effective it can be.

Whatever ordinary citizens may think about it there is little chance the partisan political flavor of the board will be altered.

Last week, House Republican leader James Washburn, Morris, nominated Richard Northern of Quincy and Adams as his two nominees for the board.

Northern is past chairman of the Republican State Central Committee.

Adams is almost assured to be reappointed and the governor may have tried to give him a boost to get the chairmanship when the board organizes July 1.

According to law the chairmanship must switch each term to a member of the other party. Lavelle, the present chairman is a Democrat.

Lunding would be the Republican in line to get the chairmanship had not Walker tried to fire him.

It is not clear what his status will be on July 1, but if the high court has not ruled against him, he could be a candidate for chairman.

If all of this smells like politics-as-usual, take heart.

It just may be the only way to keep elections honest is to as evenly balance as possible the watchdog keepers as party hacks for whatever else they might let go by, it is certain they will not let the other guys get by with anything.

Kissinger on the couch

An 800-page book, "Kissinger on the Couch," written by Phyllis Schlafly and Adm. Chester Ward reveals the secretary of state came to power with the help of members of the Council of Foreign Relations.

The book substantiates the charge made by Gov. Meldrin Thompson of New Hampshire, a Republican, that Kissinger is

"the cunning architect of America's planned destruction."

Gov. Thompson went on to say Kissinger should be fired and he further alleged the secretary of state has done more in six years to dismantle our military preparedness, endangered the national security and jeopardized the future of our prosperity than any citizen in the history of our country. Suzanne Vance, a member of the Los Angeles Republican Woman's Club, in a review of the book, notes it shows Kissinger has usurped the powers of the Presidency in both foreign and defense policies.

The book is published by Arlington House, 81 Centre Ave., New Rochelle, N.Y. 10801 and is priced at $12.95.

"Have a havana, Senor?"

By DON OAKLEY

One scientist has put the energy situation in terms every weight-watcher can understand, even if they are a little mind-boggling.

Last year, says Edward Olsen, curator of mineralogy at Chicago's Field Museum of Natural History, Americans used up more than 18 quadrillion energy calories, chiefly derived from fossil fuels—petroleum, natural gas and coal.

That's the figure 18 followed by 15 zeroes and was enough energy to boil away nine trillion gallons of water. It represented 82 million calories for every man, woman and child in the country (and does not include the food calories they ate, which added up to another 160 quadrillion calories).

Perhaps more important is the fact that energy demands have been rising about five per cent a year, which means that we will be using 36 quadrillion energy calories by 1990. But even right now, the United States, with only six per cent of the world's population, uses close to 30 per cent of the world's present energy.

The last statistic is frequently cited with the strong hint that this level of energy consumption is not only inequitable but downright immoral. But energy translates into work, Olsen points out in an article in the museum's Bulletin, and although it is clear that Americans have been the first recipients of a better standard of living from this expenditure of energy, it is also clear that exported food surpluses and goods for export have added to the material lot of numerous nations throughout the world. The "calories per person" figure for the United States does not give the whole story.

If one adds the gross national products for all the nations of the world together, the U.S. share is approximately 30 per cent of the total. Thus using 30 per cent of the world's energy, the United States produces food, goods and services in proportion.

"The image of the great giant, lolling like a parasite, gulping the energy of the world to the detriment of all others, is far from accurate," says Olsen.

There is, at present, no absolute shortage of energy in the world, he says. Nevertheless, political and economic factors are acting to put stress on the consumption pattern of Americans, the world's largest single group of energy consumers. We may resent it, but it may actually be a blessing in disguise.

For example, the overall miles-per-gallon performance of American vehicles has dropped steadily for two decades. It now takes 2,000 calories to move one person one mile by auto. By contrast, the figure for a bicycle is only 50 calories. And while heavy industry has generally attempted to keep efficiencies as high as possible, it has often been more economical to continue using lower efficiency machinery rather than undergo the higher cost of newer, more efficient equipment.

In general, at least 50 per cent of the calories we use are lost due to inefficiencies of various kinds. Moreover, the prospects for alternate energy sources are indeed numerous, although for a decade at least we will have to change our energy-consuming habits.

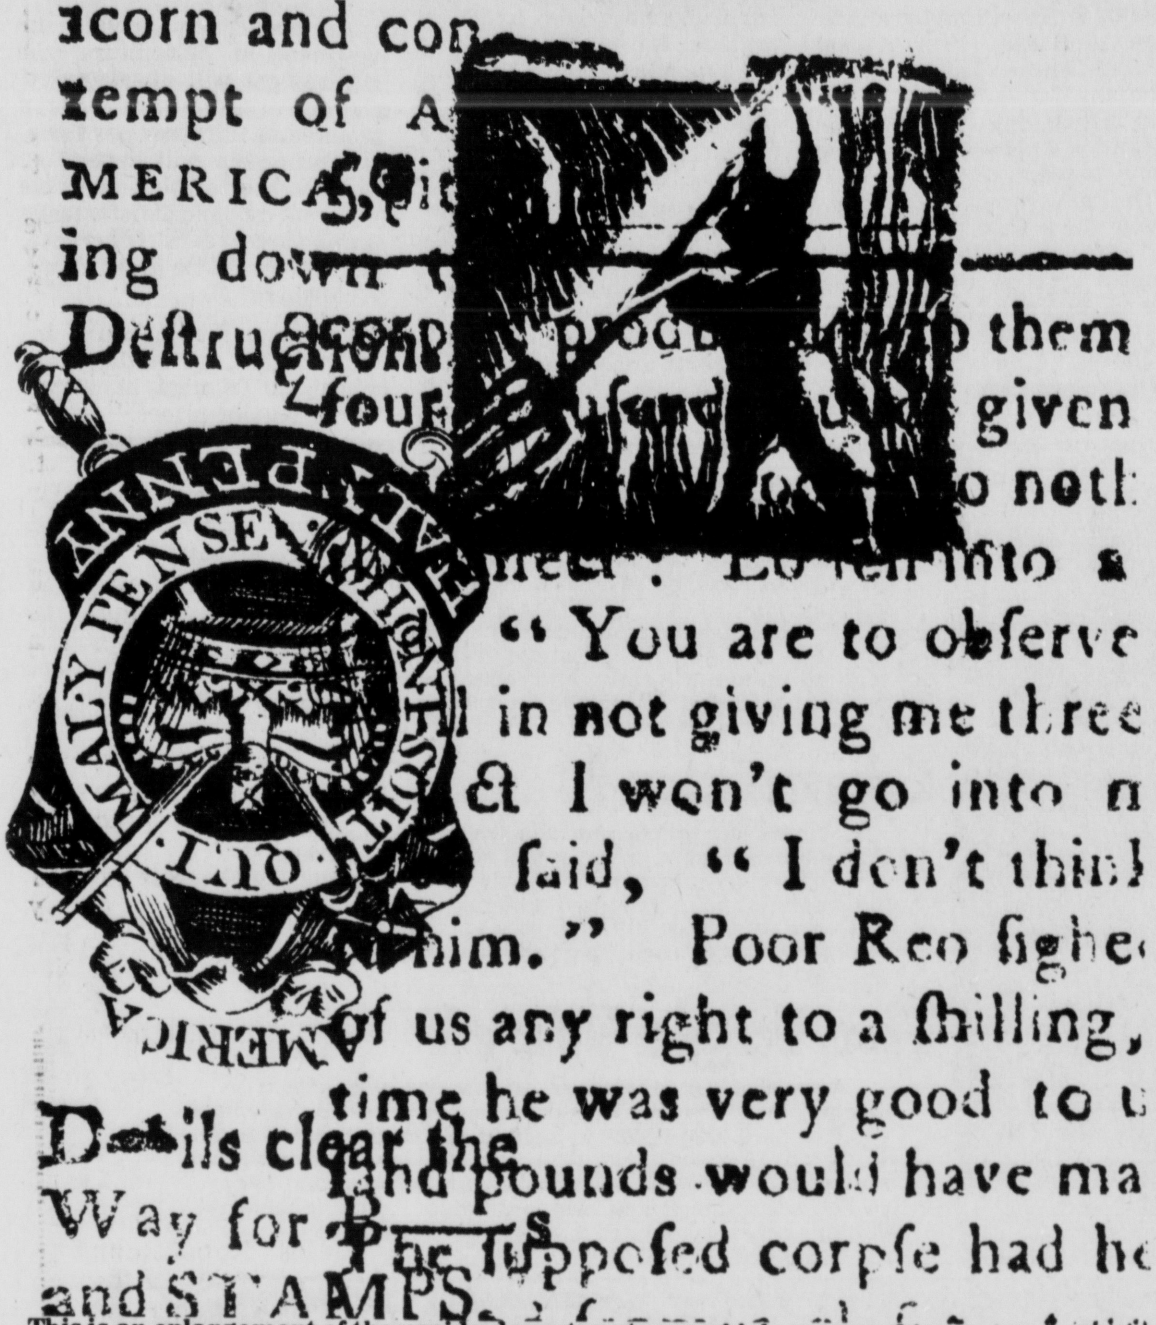

"We are fortunate," submits Olsen, "that because of a combination of political events, economic conditions and social and environmental events, we have received an early warning."

"There IS an energy crisis, not one that is going to destroy us, but one which will give us pause to think and find solutions before a disastrous state does arrive."

Isaiah Thomas and the Halifax Gazette

AMERICAN BICENTENNIAL 1976

This is an enlargement of the upside-down tax stamp which appeared in the issue of the Halifax Gazette described in the accompanying article. While the printer Isaiah Thomas had turned the prestamped paper around so that the stamp appeared inverted, his own crude cut of the devil with a pitchfork was printed in correct position. Careful examination will also reveal the words that the printer placed beneath the stamp. It was a flagrant mis-use of stamped paper, and superimposing the devil stamp and other material on the printed page was hardly good newspaper practice. Isaiah Thomas's taunting opposition to the Stamp Act cost him his job on the Halifax Gazette. (Courtesy, American Antiquarian Society)

By DR. FRANCIS G. WALETT
Worcester State College

The young printer sat in the dimly lit shop in Halifax, Nova Scotia, carving a crude woodcut with a devil's image that he would use in the next issue of the Halifax Gazette.

Isaiah Thomas, the 16-year-old lad from Boston, who had been hired to help get out the only newspaper of the British province, could easily see that the Stamp Act would hurt the printing business. Although he was probably unaware at first of the political implications of this parliamentary tax law of 1765, the alert young printer saw its full meaning before long. In any event he did his best to stir up the people of Nova Scotia against the measure.

A poor but bright boy, Thomas had been apprenticed by his mother at the age of 6 to learn the printing business with Zechariah Fowle of Boston. After working and studying with Fowle for nine years, he had a quarrel with his master and broke the apprenticeship. Following this he headed for Halifax, hoping to make his way to London, where he might "acquire a more perfect knowledge of his business." In desperate need of funds, Thomas took a job with Anthony Henry, publisher of the Halifax Gazette. It was during this time that the Stamp Act went into effect in Nova Scotia.

Although Henry was not very skillful as a printer—and had little liking for the trade—he was given charge of a press that the provincial government felt was essential for its business. This fat, good-natured Alsatian was preoccupied with other affairs, or perhaps he was just behind in his fishing. In any that the stamp appeared in the wrong place on the page. And calling attention to the increased cost because of the stamps, he slyly inserted under the masthead "Advertisements are taken in, and inserted as cheap as the Stamp Act will allow." Another time he trimmed the paper so that the stamp did not appear at all; once he inserted a skull and crossbones in place of the stamp.

It may seem incredible that the young printer got away with these taunts for several months. But Anthony Henry was a lethargic soul, and the authorities did not take Thomas too seriously because most Nova Scotians were seemingly indifferent to the Stamp Act. He was reprimanded, however, and for a time behaved himself.

In the Feb. 13, 1766, issue of the Halifax Gazette, Thomas outdid himself. The revenue stamp appeared upside down and next to it was the woodcut that Isaiah had been carving. This showed the devil jabbing at stamps with a pitchfork, and there was an inscription reading "Scorn and contempt for America pitching down to destruction. D... it clear the way for B... s and Stamps."

This was too much and Isaiah Thomas was fired. Unable to get to England, he took passage to Portsmouth, N.Y., and finally made it back to Boston. Before long he was in the thick of Patriot opposition to British policies in Massachusetts.

Printers almost everywhere in the colonies regarded the Stamp Act as oppressive and unfair to them. All branches of the printing trade would be hard hit; items subject to tax included newspapers, almanacs, pamphlets, newspaper advertisements, most legal and business forms, and apprenticeship indentures. It is small wonder that a loud chorus of protest was heard from the printers, or that Newspapers were filled with angry denunciations of the "fatal Black-Act." Printers saw the Stamp Act as a virtual guarantee of economic disaster for them.

Newspapers opened their pages to Patriot writers, who spewed forth venomous articles about the threat to American rights and liberties. Public opinion was aroused as never before. Faced with this widespread clamor, Parliament repealed the Stamp Act. American Patriots and printers (especially newspaper publishers) had discovered an important weapon—the power of the press.

Isaiah Thomas, the young printer who had opposed the Stamp Act in Halifax, soon became a leading Patriot. His Massachusetts Spy, begun in 1770, was the most daring of Boston's newspapers—almost flaming in its denunciation of British rule. On the eve of the battle of Lexington and Concord, Thomas fled with his press to Worcester, about forty miles inland.

Years later, after making his fortune in the printing and publishing business, Isaiah Thomas founded the American Antiquarian Society in Worcester, Mass., as a means of preserving the printed record of the young republic.

Thomas improved the quality of the Gazette as best he could, and then began to enliven the newspaper with his choice of items and editorial notes. He also copied articles from other papers (as was the custom) and soon attracted attention with his opposition to the Stamp Act. One issue contained "A Definition of Treason" that had appeared in the Boston Post-Boy.

The Doctor Says:

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband is 72 years old and has incipient diabetes. About 1½ years ago the doctor put him on a 1000-calorie diabetic diet and he lost 50 pounds. We cut out practically all sugar. I use some in bread.

He might eat a piece of pie three or four times a year. He hasn't had to take insulin and has had no sugar counts since. We eat fresh fruit, but I'm wondering about honey. He doesn't miss the sugar, but he would like honey once in a while. Would honey act like sugar or fruit?

DEAR READER — Many people with moderately elevated blood sugar tests will have normal test results after losing weight. This is one reason why it is a mistake to put overweight people with diabetic blood tests on a pill rather than putting them on a proper diet.

As far as I'm concerned, the only sensible approach to managing diabetes is to eliminate any excess obesity before deciding what kind of treatment you must use. Of course, some cases are more urgent and require immediate treatment while weight reduction is being accomplished, but you should never rely on medicine rather than correcting your weight and diet problems.

Honey acts in the body the same as sugar. Once they are both absorbed into the bloodstream they are both used to elevate the blood sugar level.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am expecting my first baby and I want to nurse it. My husband wants me to also. But all my in-laws are against it and keep trying to talk me out of it. My doctor is all for nursing and told me the benefits are numerous, but he didn't elaborate. So, I'm hoping you can help by telling me some things I might like to pass on to my in-laws. Prenatal books say nursing is best but tell little else.

DEAR READER — I am reminded of one of my teachers in pediatrics who always finished his remarks on the advantages of breast feeding by noting that the milk came in such cute containers. A good many of the advantages are the conveniences. The problems of sterilized bottles and formula feeding and complications with formulas simply do not occur if a mother is able to provide complete nursing for the baby. There is less likelihood of a food-borne digestive upset for the baby.

Some think there are psychological advantages, too, in the closeness that develops when the baby is held against the mother's breast for feeding. The maternal heartbeat and all those things seem to have an impact on psychological development.

Air bubbles and other mechanical feeding problems do not occur.

Of course, you can always remind your in-laws that it means their son won't have to get up at night to feed the baby. And, in the last analysis, I think mothers should do what they want to do in accordance with their doctor's advice — not what either set of grandparents wants them to do.

Saudi Arabian project to turn desert green

HOFUF, Saudi Arabia (AP) — The government of Saudi Arabia is planning to spend $12 billion of its oil wealth in an effort to turn the eastern Saudi desert green.

This ancient oasis 180 miles east of Riyadh is the center of a grandiose desert reclamation program, part of a $143.5 billion five-year development plan.

The program here is but a fraction of Saudi Arabia's agricultural plans. In all 4.18 million hectares are to be turned from sand to farmland.

"But this will require at least half a century to accomplish," said Taher Ebied, under-secretary of agriculture. "We have the money, we have water resources. What we don't have is an adequate infrastructure to carry out this ultimate objective."

At present, only 1.4 million acres of farmland are cultivated in the desert monarchy, which earns more than $25 billion in oil revenues annually.

At this oasis, the midnight horizon glows in fierce red hues at the edge of Dhahran, the world's largest oil field. As tongues of flared gas fret the skyline, camels file by the palm trees, heedless of the modernity developing around them.

The kingdom, Ebied said, envisions improving and regulating underground water resources and installing an efficient drainage network to reduce salinity in various areas.

Five research centers have been set up in Jidda, Riyadh, Hassa and Qatif, in addition to the one in Hofuf. These operate model farms and carry out experiments dealing with fishing, insecticides, fodder, seeds, fertilizers, poultry and livestock.

"We have 17 medium-size dams in the kingdom," said Ebied, "and we will increase these to 23, gradually."

Most of those dams control rain waters in the southern regions of Jazira and Abha.

The biggest is Jaizan Dam: about 1,000 feet long and 125 feet high, with a capacity to store enough water, to irrigate about 50,000 acres, it cost $27 million.

The Hassa irrigation and drainage program cost $70 million and increased the cultivable area around Hofuf from 20,000 acres to 50,000 acres.

Hofuf was once a rest area for nomadic Bedouins. The government has earmarked $30 million for resettling those Bedouins at Hassa, Hofuf, Khobar and elsewhere. This envisions pumping water from 50 wells, and distributing it through an irrigation network covering about 10,000 acres.

The government has been giving them land water, seeds and advice, said Agagui. No estimates were available on the size of the Bedouin population or the number of those settled at Hofuf.

The resettlement was started five years ago. Hofuf and nearby Hassa are the new homes for the Bedouins of eastern Saudi Arabia, where irrigation projects have consumed $6.3 million. More money is being spent on electrification, road building and education in the area.

Under the plan, $1.8 billion went to electrification projects. Desalinated water production will rise from 57 million gallons a day to 163 million. A total of 270,000 new homes, some in reclaimed areas, are to be built.

Experts are testing 250 types of wheat to cultivate 167,000 acres and raise production from 75,000 tons to 100,000 tons over four years.

To encourage private investment in agriculture, the government will distribute reclaimed areas at an average of 32 acres to 160 acres per farmer. Ownership will depend on whether the farmers are able to exploit the land satisfactorily within three years. Otherwise, the land would be given to abler farmers.

The incentive program includes selling agricultural machinery to farmers at 55 percent of regular prices.

How do you measure food savings?

Compare the Eagle Way!

Special?

It's really too bad, but many shoppers measure food savings only by looking at the advertised "specials" they see in a food ad.

Too bad, because "specials" can often be misleading. They can only give you a sample of the type of prices you'll find throughout the store. And, what's worse, they may be "loss-leaders," specially-priced items, priced below cost to entice you into the store.

Gimmicks?

Stamps, free dishes, sweepstakes games... you've probably seen them, and more, advertised at many supermarkets.

And while it may be fun to play the games, the plain truth of the matter is that someone has to pay for all those things. More often than not, the price you pay for the food you buy in these stores helps pay for all those "free" things the store offers you.

The Eagle Way!

A sensible way to measure food savings is to judge a supermarket by the total amount you spend for all you take home.

That's the Eagle Way to savings. No occasional "specials."

No stamps or games. Just plain, sensible low prices you can depend on to give you savings on your family's food bill.

We challenge you to compare Eagle... total for total... with any other supermarket. You'll find savings you can count on!

CONVERSATION ON CARPET

By Gerry Wermers

"W-TO-W"

Never Left The Scene

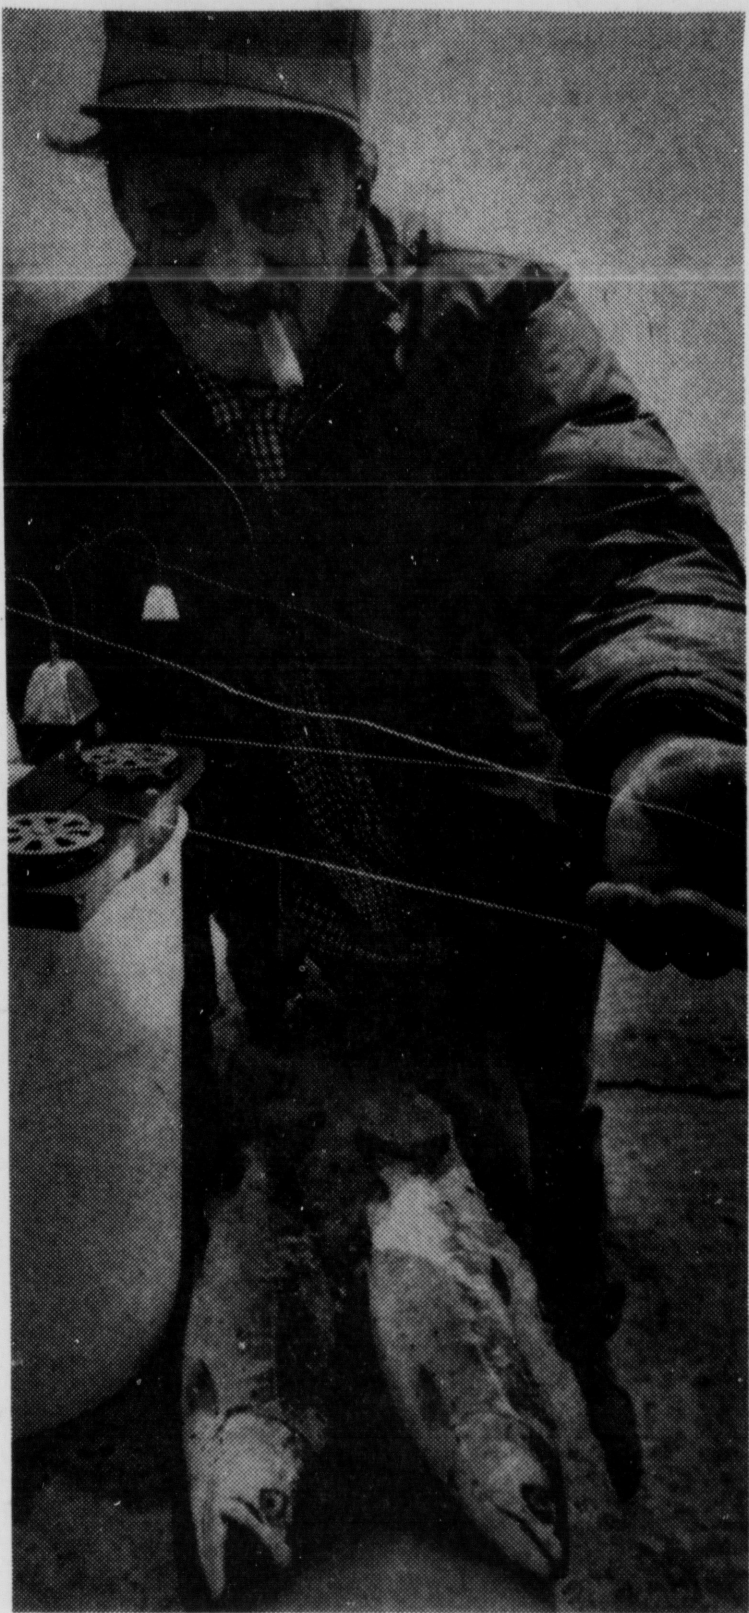

I do think that for a while there, the "Wall-to-Wall" carpeting idea was being replaced by the area rug in some rooms. However, I do notice now that "wall-to-wall" carpeting is back with us again and in some cases really never left the scene. I know full well that fads come and go and the big reason why we are seeing more of wall-to-wall is because of the great new colors available now. It's easier to clean and keep clean and better wearability are the reasons for the strong comeback.

I do tell my customers that the wall-to-wall treatment of carpeting does make any room look larger, because the floor is not broken up into islands of different textures—wood, and fabric. Don't forget friends, that furniture is easier to arrange with the floors covered to all ends of the room.

The very first guide-line in selecting wall-to-wall carpeting is to select a color you know and feel you can live with for a long time. When you are ready, we would like to show you some of the good man-made fibers in wall-to-wall carpeting that can be spot-cleaned with a sponge and it's as easy as that to maintain a clean carpet all ways.

Stop by 313 W. 1st St.—our stock SELECTION IS NOW OVER 150 ROLLS. Our display of samples has never been more complete. We feel like buying carpet without seeing the wide Wermers selection is restricting available colors and styles to a very great degree.

You don't have to leave our town for a wide choice at competitive prices—Wermers has it all for you.

Psychiatry of violence in N. Ireland

Warfare improves mental health

By JAMES R. PEIPERT
Associated Press Writer
BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP)—The people of Northern Ireland have experienced a marked, short-term improvement in their mental health during nearly six years of sectarian warfare, says a psychiatrist who has extensively studied the phenomenon.

"I'm not advocating violence as a means of improving mental health," said Dr. H.A. Lyons. "It's a peculiar side effect that has been described repeatedly in countries in time of war."

But Lyons, a consultant at Belfast's Purdysburn Hospital, warned that the long term effects of the violence "are much, much more disturbing," including a shredding of the social fabric, a decline in moral standards, a rise in crime and an increase in bigotry.

Since the Northern Ireland violence erupted in 1969, Lyons has published studies of the psychological impact of the warfare on the local population. He is regarded in Britain as one of the leading experts in that field.

Spain during the Spanish Civil War, all European countries during World War II, and Northern Ireland since 1969, Lyons said, noticed among their general populations a significant drop in the number of suicides, nervous breakdowns, admissions to mental hospitals and visits to psychiatrists.

The suicide rate among Northern Ireland's 1.5-million population has halved during The Troubles, Lyons said. But during the same period the sectarian strife has taken the lives of more than 1,200 persons, wounded or crippled for life another 9,000 and further polarized the Roman Catholic and Protestant communities.

"One of the biggest causes of mental illness is boredom, nothing to strive for, the feeling that you've arrived at your destination with nothing further to do," Lyons explained. "But in a wartime situation people have a cause, have a purpose, something to strive for, they're actively involved."

In London, psychiatrist Joshua Bierer noted that mental illness is most prevalent in affluent societies such as the United States where many people are bored because their lack of motivation.

Dr. Bierer, medical director of the Institute of Social Psychiatry and editor of the International Journal of Social Psychiatry, said he was familiar with Lyons' Ulster findings and that he and most psychiatrists would not find them surprising.

Bierer told of his own work at a psychiatric clinic in London during World War II. He said that when the war broke out he expected the clinic to be swamped by people whose mental health had been impaired by the stresses of war but, instead, the number of patients decreased significantly.

"It was the biggest surprise of my life," he said. He added that psychiatrists have since found that "the worst enemies of mental health in present-day Western society are boredom and lack of motivation," usually absent in wartime.

But in the long run, Dr. Lyons said, prolonged violence can severely impair the collective psyche of a people. In Ulster, he said, "what we're doing is bringing up another generation of bigots."

"We've taught our teen-agers to hate," Lyons said. "These kids were 9 or 10 when the thing started. They're now 16 or 17. So for a very formative time of their lives they have been taught and conditioned to hate, taught and conditioned that violence is an acceptable way of life. It's a pattern that's been ingrained in them."

(An American psychiatrist who has written on the subject, Dr. Jules H. Masserman of Chicago, endorsed Lyons' findings:

"It is a phenomenon during warfare when trivial issues fade into insignificance," he said.

(Dr. Masserman added that the additional finding, of deleterious effects on children growing up as witnesses to adult cruelty, also has been found in other wartime situations.)

"When the politicians do decide to come together — and I suppose they will — certainly these teen-agers won't be able to suddenly settle down," Lyons said. "So you will have in the future a big problem of crime and anti-social behavior — young criminals and juvenile delinquents and so forth. And nobody's really considering this."

Lyons said he has noted an upsurge in crime and anti-social behavior not directly connected with the sectarian troubles — petty vandalism, reckless driving, drunkenness, wife-beating and marital infidelity. He said it's partly because the police are too busy with bombing and murder to deal with the vandal or drunk, but also due to the stress and strain of prolonged civil strife.

"I mean if you're living in a street where there's shooting and bombing, intimidation, army searches, your family interned, and so forth, to be a bit worried, a bit anxious about the situation is normal," Lyons said. "To be indifferent, callous and cold would be indicative of mental illness." Also, he said, it's mentally healthy to let off steam.

Another spinoff of the troubles, Lyons said, is that there is virtually no drug problem in Northern Ireland.

Teen-agers in some countries "have to go out and search for their kicks" and sometimes resort to drugs, he said. "But in Belfast kids can get their kicks just by sitting in their front door in a civil war situation," hurling rocks and epithets at the soldiers and police.

Food for Americans

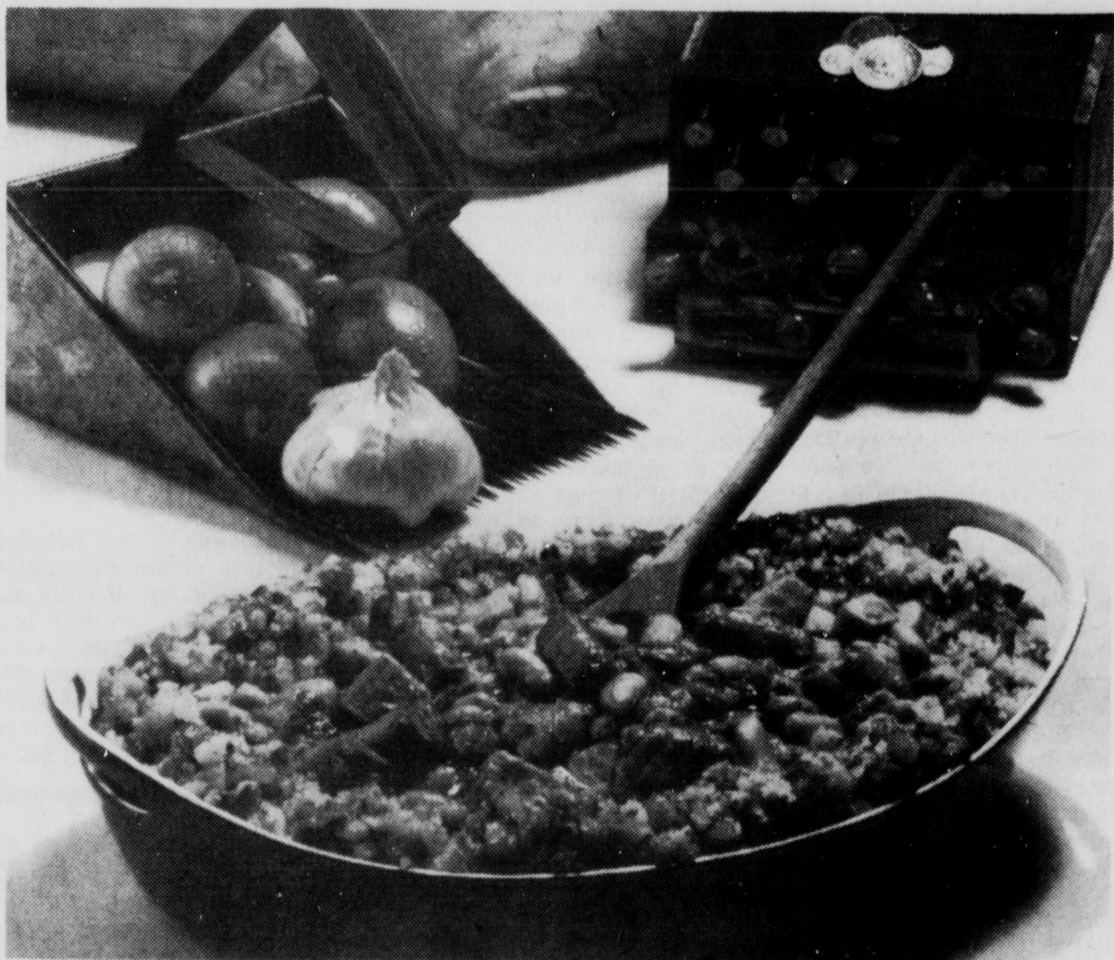

A quick and tasty cassoulet

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

One of the better ways to stretch the meat or poultry dollar is to cook large quantities of a roast, for example, or cook a whole turkey and use leftovers in imaginative and tasty dishes. Two such dishes that will help vary the leftovers from entertaining are an Easy Cranberry Cassoulet and a Cranwich Casserole. Even portions of these dishes may be frozen as an added money and energy-saving step.

- EASY CRANBERRY CASSOULET
- 6 slices bacon, chopped
 - 2 onions, chopped
 - 1 pound breakfast sausages, cut into 1-inch pieces
 - 1 clove garlic, chopped
 - 1 teaspoon thyme
 - 3 cups diced cooked lamb, chicken or beef
 - 3 cans (1 pound, 4 ounces each) cannellini beans, (white kidney beans), drained
 - 1 can (6 ounces) tomato paste
 - 1 cup cranberry-orange relish
 - 1 can (10 3/4 ounces) condensed chicken broth
 - 2 cups soft bread crumbs
 - 1/4 cup butter or margarine

In a large Dutch oven or saucapen fry bacon until crisp. Add onions and sausages and saute until all are golden. Do not drain drippings. Stir in garlic, thyme, meat or poultry and beans. Mix tomato paste, relish and chicken broth in a bowl. Pour bean mixture into a 3-quart casserole. Pour tomato paste over bean mixture. Stir to blend. Bake in a preheated oven until brown and crusty. Mix crumbs and butter in a small skillet and stir over low heat until crumbs are brown and crisp. Sprinkle some crumbs over each serving of cassoulet. This bean dish also can be prepared more quickly by simmering in a covered Dutch oven or saucapen for 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. Serve sprinkled with crumbs. Makes 6 servings.

Cranberry cassoulet is a hearty answer to leftover meats or poultry.

CRANWICH CASSEROLE
12 white bread slices
1 can (1 pound) whole berry

cranberry sauce
6 thick slices leftover cooked ham, chicken or turkey
Butter or margarine
4 eggs
2 cups milk
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups (8 ounces) sharp cheddar cheese, grated

Using bread, cranberry sauce and ham, make sandwiches. Spread outside of sandwich with soft butter. Place sandwiches side by side in a greased 9x13x2-inch baking pan. Beat eggs, milk and salt until well blended. Pour over sandwiches. Sprinkle with cheese. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for 40 to 45 minutes or until brown and puffed. Cut apart sandwiches and remove with a pancake turner to serve. Makes 6 servings.

COPING

New marriages for old

By JOANNE KOCH

"We wanted to guarantee that we weren't going to wind up at 60 like other couples, like our parents. We came away from the weekend feeling loved, cuddly and secure."

"I had been working 100 hours a week, when a new boss came in and gave someone else the promotion. I began asking if I really wanted a cash register as the monument to my life. I came away from the encounter weekend knowing what I wanted out of life."

What is there about a marriage encounter weekend that turns skeptics into true believers, transforms workaholics into family men and changes ho-hum marriages into love stories?

I can't tell all. That would spoil the spontaneity and surprise for anyone who should decide to go. As one priest put it, "If I wrote you a six-volume description of each instrument in an orchestra would you know what a symphony sounded like?" But I can tell you what marriage encounter is not.

Marriage encounter is not an encounter group. It is a group of couples retreating to a place free of work—children—TV—time—in-law—and social distractions. Within the simple structure of introspection and sharing on basic issues, each individual couple spends its time delving into each partner's thoughts about himself and the relationship.

The sharing is mainly on the part of the team couples and the religious leader who lead off each session by imparting some relevant personal experience. Meals and a few other moments designed to heighten warmth and sentiment are shared by the group of 20 or so couples. But the primary focus is on the husband and wife, with no invasion of their intimacy.

Marriage encounter is not marriage counseling. On each encounter weekend, usually held at a retreat house or motel, the priest, minister or a rabbinic couple is available at all times for those who wish to consult or confide in them. But couples who have serious marital problems and individuals in need of psychiatric help are urged not to come on the weekend.

Some degree of dissatisfaction, boredom, communication breakdown and/or desire to grow may prompt couples to choose the weekend. But those who are on the brink of divorce would do better seeking out a reputable marriage or family counselor.

Marriage encounter is not designed for religious conversion. Marriage encounter took off in this country in 1967 when Father Calvo, who had developed the movement in Spain, addressed a gathering of the Christian Family Movement at the University of Notre Dame. The World Wide Marriage Encounter developed from that meeting with a bit more dogmatism than the National Marriage Encounter. But whatever the expression of the weekend, religious aspects are not oppressive.

Jewish, Protestant and agnostic couples who have attended Catholic encounter weekends report that they could easily translate the few Catholic references and ceremonies into their own terms. Two years ago a Jewish Marriage Encounter movement formed in New York. Since then 10,000 couples have attended Jewish encounter weekends. Several Protestant denominations have begun to organize weekends. And no doubt the renewal of marriages will have a rejuvenating effect on churches and synagogues. But for the present, the movement is low on theology and high on evangelism.

The word spreads like wildfire. Each couple coming off a weekend urges friends and families to sign up—with no thought to the generation gap.

What is emerging among the 400,000 people who have attended marriage encounters is a new sense of community, a ready-made extended family. In fact, "Family Encounter" weekends are the newest outgrowth of this burgeoning movement. The weekend experience creates a bond and the bond is reinforced by monthly dialogue sessions and "anniversary" weekends. The confidential, voluntary contribution of "as much as you can afford" to cover the expenses of approximately $70 or $80 per couple allows any husband and wife to attend and keeps commercialism from polluting the event.

Some couples now regard the marriage encounter movement as a calling and have devoted their lives to it. But most simply pass the word joyously: "There's life left yet in the old institution of matrimony."

Dear Ann

by Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I work in an office where there are several vending machines. They dispense such items as coffee, cigarettes, candy bars and chewing gum. My desk is situated at an angle that allows me to look up and see everyone who uses two such machines.

Occasionally, something goes wrong and somebody loses money. You wouldn't believe the ugly performances I have witnessed. I've seen executives pound the machines with their fists, kick them, and swear a purple streak. This morning, a secretary took a paperweight and broke the glass. These morons behave as if the machines were people who were intentionally trying to cheat them.

Please print my letter and tell your readers two things. First: They would lose fewer coins if they were more patient. Never push a button or pull a lever until you have given the coins plenty of time to click on through. Second: If, after a reasonable time, the merchandise doesn't appear and the coins don't come back, notify the office manager who should in turn inform the vending company so restitution can be made.—Free Show

Dear Show: What you are witnessing is the behavior of adults who deal with frustration and anger at an adolescent level. If they swear at and pound on machines, I wonder what they do to people!!!!

Dear Ann Landers: You OES stated meeting set caused a lot of trouble in our house over the weekend when you said gainfully employed children should contribute 15 per cent of their paychecks for room and board.

My sister and I are both working girls. Sis is planning to marry in October. She pays $100 a month on furniture for her future home. I am paying $100 a month on my new car.

The folks put us through business training, paid for our clothes and housed and fed us for 20 years. Why now, all of a sudden, are we an expense? Neither of us pays room or board nor do we intend to.

We help with the dishes and housework. We iron our own clothes and babysit for our parents. All we ask is free room and board. If our parents ever needed anything they know we would be there to help.

If we were expected to hand over 15 per cent of our paychecks we'd rather move into an apartment and not have the family breathing down our necks. Then Mom would have a fit. She thinks it's indecent for unmarried girls to live away from their families.

It's wrong for you to condemn unmarried children for living at home and not paying 15 per cent room and board. Retract it, please.—No Freeloaders Here

Dear No Load: No retraction is necessary because I never made such a statement. My response was to a mother who wanted to know how much to ask her highly salaried, self-indulgent son to pay for room and board. (He was paying zilch.) I replied, "Fifteen per cent—and if he thinks he can get food and lodging, maid-service, laundry, dry-cleaning and a phone for less elsewhere, invite him to try it."

Circumstances alter cases. Some parents neither need nor want payment from their children. Often they encourage them to save their money instead. So please don't put words in my mouth. There are plenty there already.

Discards play important role

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Today's hand from "Bridge Brilliance and Blunders" might well be titled "We'll never know."

West's opening two-spade bid was one of those weak two-bids that are popular in tournament circles. Its effect, combined with East's jump to four, was to catapult South into six clubs.

Against a spade lead, South would have had no problems. He would simply ruff the second spade, draw trumps and claim.

West's singleton diamond lead gave South a problem. Two rounds of trumps left West with another. So South cashed dummy's ace of hearts and ran off the rest of his trumps to come down to two hearts, two spades and a diamond while dummy held king-queen-eight of diamonds and king-jack of hearts.

East had chucked all his spades and a diamond to come down to two hearts and three diamonds.

Now all South had to do was to play out dummy's diamonds. East won the last one and had to lead up to dummy's hearts.

Why the suggested title? If

Are you among those who have sought in vain on shelves of your supermarket for almond or coconut macaroons, called for frequently in dessert recipes? An easy answer is to bake them yourself.

The almond variety are excellent for pie recipes in which crumbled macaroons are used as the bottom crust. Here's a recipe.

In the large bowl of your electric mixer put contents of an 8-ounce can of almond paste. Beat to soften, then gradually beat in $\frac{3}{4}$ cup sugar and 2 unbeaten egg whites. When these are thoroughly blended, add $\frac{1}{2}$ cup sifted all-purpose flour and a pinch of salt.

Mix well then drop by the teaspoonful onto a lightly greased cookie sheet, keeping the macaroons at least 1 inch apart. Bake at 300 degrees (preheated oven) for 30 minutes. Remove from the cookie sheet with a spatula onto a rack to cool.

When macaroons are cool, store in a wax paper lined can with a tightfitting lid to avoid hardening. Macaroons also can be frozen in an air-tight container. The recipe makes 36 to 40.

For a coconut macaroon pie shell, beat 1 egg white until stiff, then gradually beat in 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 tablespoon light corn syrup, and $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon vanilla. Add 2 cups fine shredded coconut and blend. Line a 9-inch pie pan with the mixture patting firmly with your fingers or the back of a spoon. Bake 15 minutes at 350 degrees. Chill and fill with any fruit or cream filling.

With fresh tomatoes more plentiful and the home grown varieties soon to hit the vegetable stands, here is a different and flavorful way to bring them to the table. The recipe is Italian in origin.

Wash 8 large ripe tomatoes and peel. Melt $\frac{1}{4}$ pound butter or margarine in a large skillet and place the whole tomatoes, stem side down, in the skillet. Add 2 teaspoons brown sugar, cover and simmer gently over low heat.

With a large slotted spoon, carefully turn the tomatoes and add 6 tablespoons minced chives, 4 tablespoons minced parsley, 1 teaspoon crushed oregano, salt and pepper to taste. Spoon butter and seasonings over tomatoes, cover and simmer gently for another 10 minutes. Serve immediately in individual heated bowls or one heated serving dish. Spoon pan juices over each serving or overall. Serves 4 to 8 depending upon size of tomatoes.

Bill would permit drug advertising

WASHINGTON (AP) — Drug stores would be able to advertise prices of prescription drugs and customers thus could shop for the cheapest price if the Federal Trade Commission adopts a proposed regulation.

However, a survey of the 16 states and the District of Columbia where drug-price advertising already is allowed shows that not all druggists and drug companies are eager to advertise prices, even when it's legal.

The FTC, in making the proposal Monday, asserted that comparison shopping for prescription drugs would save consumers more than $130 million a year.

FTC Chairman Lewis A. Engman said, "It is a curious set of values which says that the consumer may be given full information about discretionary purchases such as deodorant and mouthwash but cannot be given information that will help him save money on nondiscretionary purchases such as drugs which a doctor has prescribed as essential to his good health."

The commission said drug price advertising is restricted by laws in 34 states and effectively blocked even in the 16 other states by pharmacists' codes of ethics and consumer ignorance of wide divergence in prices for the same drugs.

If the FTC adopts the proposed rule after receiving public comment and holding hearings, the rule would supercede those state laws.

The rationale of the restrictive laws and the ethical prohibitions includes concern that advertising and price cutting might lead to inferior quality; fear that the advertising would generate an unnecessary demand for drugs; and druggists' insistence that a professional relationship between pharmacist and customer should be determined by factors other than prices.

There also are some economic factors in the debate. Some large drug chains tend to favor price advertising because they sometimes are better equipped to compete with both high-volume advertising and high-volume drug sales. For those same reasons, some smaller drug firms and individual druggists oppose advertising.

In Washington state, one of the 16 states without advertising prohibitions, one drug executive said his seven-pharmacy chain limited its ads to the claim that "we meet or beat prescription prices." G.A. Guy, head of the Guy chain in the Seattle-Tacoma area, said there were some price wars among druggists. One effect has been that a number of independent drug stores have folded because they were unable to meet the competition offered by chains, he said.

Bob Lichtefeld, head of the Kentucky Pharmaceutical Association, said the FTC's proposal would have little effect because most pharmacists choose not to advertise anyway. He said prices are listed in most drug stores in Kentucky, where advertising is legal. One Louisville druggist said one problem with advertising is that it reveals a pharmacist's prices to his competitors.

The most enthusiastic reception to drug price advertising came from a Nevada official who said the state's large chain stores have been advertising and that drug prices have gone down as a result.

Legislation to move state primary to May okayed

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Both the Illinois House and Senate now have approved legislation moving the state's primary election from March to May.

The House approved and sent to the Senate Tuesday night a bill calling for the primary to be held on the first Tuesday in May.

And a bill passed earlier in the Senate and now pending in the House calls for the election to be held on the second Tuesday in May. Currently, Illinois' primary election is held on the third Tuesday in March.

Supporters of a May primary have argued that political campaigns are too long and expensive with a primary in March. They have also contended that bad weather in March often keeps voters away from the polls, particularly elderly citizens.

Opponents have argued, however, that a May primary would be a hardship on farmers, who are busy during the month with spring planting. They have also contended that a primary election in May would disrupt legislative sessions.

Much of Tuesday's legislative activity was in committee sessions. The Senate devoted its floor session to amendments on pending bills, and the House disposed of numerous non-controversial measures.

However, the House spent an extended period debating a measure to require county board elections to be held in conjunction with the November general election. The measure, approved earlier in the Senate, was sent to the governor on a 91 to 59 vote.

Sponsors said the bill would affect only three counties — Macon, Vermilion and Douglas. They said the state's other 99 counties had voluntarily moved their elections from the first Tuesday in April to November under permissive legislation passed last year by the General Assembly.

Rep. Jack Beaupre, D-Bourbonnais, sponsor of the measure in the House, argued that counties holding a separate board election in April were wasting taxpayers' money. He said the three counties had spent more than $80,000 holding separate elections this year.

Opponents of the bill argued, however, that counties should be free to hold the election whenever they wished. Some contended that a county board election in November would be unfairly influenced by the popularity of candidates running for national or state offices.

In committee action: —Four third-grade school children from Decatur persuaded the Senate Executive Committee to recommend making the monarch butterfly the state's official insect.

The children from Dennis Elementary School, 9-year-old

Kim Carr, Mike Sheffer and Kenneth Jacobs, and 8-year-old Rebecca Russell, recited facts about the insect in a prepared skit, held up books and pictures displaying the monarch's vivid orange and black hues, and showed senators a chart illustrating the complete metamorphosis of a butterfly.

The butterfly bill, approved earlier in the House by a wide margin, could be voted upon in the Senate and sent to the governor in the next few days.

Bills to allow the targets of grand jury investigations and witnesses at grand jury proceedings to be accompanied by their lawyers were approved by the Senate Judiciary Committee. —Legislation to set up a system of state identification cards beginning in 1976 and to make the third Sunday in August a day to honor senior citizens were approved by the Senate Executive Committee.

—A bill which would have allowed persons charged with crimes punishable by death to be held without bond pending their trials was killed by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

—A bill to prohibit the Illinois State Fair from requiring the slaughter of animals entered in various competitions was killed by the Senate Agriculture Committee.

—A bill removing the exemption from jury service now enjoyed by newspaper employees was approved by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

—Legislation increasing the amount a husband or wife could inherit tax-free from $20,000 to $75,000 was approved by the House Revenue Committee. The same bill would increase the tax-free amount children could inherit from $20,000 to $25,000.

—The House Banks and Savings and Loan Committee approved legislation backed by State Treasurer Alan Dixon which would allow municipalities to issue state-backed bonds.

Plans for Amboy sewer project to state EPA

AMBOY — Plans for updating of Amboy's sewage system will be forwarded to the state Environmental Protection Agency for approval next week, according to action taken by members of the City Council at the Tuesday night meeting.

Lou Pfulb of Willett, Hofmann Engineers, Dixon, was present to report on the plans which include separation of all storm sewers from the sanitary system (principally on Jefferson Avenue), severance of building drainage from the sanitary system and elimination of bypass runoff. There are presently three areas where, in event of a power failure, the overflow of the sanitary system flows directly into area streams.

These plans were approved by the council members and will be sent by June 15 to the state agency for approval. According to the state timetable, work should be started on the project by December of this year to qualify for the state grant of funds.

Pfulb also reported that well No. 2 at the city water plant is presently out of service and that the motor needs to be replaced. He offered two alternatives: the purchase of a new pump or a rebuilt, used 340-gal.-per-minute Wayne pump. The difference in price would be approximately $500. The used pump could be installed immediately, but the new unit would have to be ordered, with estimated wait of five weeks. No action was taken.

An amendment was made to the city liquor code to prohibit drinking of alcoholic beverages on a public street or park.

Bids for the resurfacing of certain city streets will be opened at an adjourned session of the council set for 7:30 p.m. June 17. The project will be financed with motor fuel tax funds.

In other action, the aldermen granted permission to the Compton Centennial Committee to hold a parade in Amboy on June 21 at 4 p.m.

The auditor of the city treasurer's books called attention to the illegal practice of paying withholding tax of employees of the water and sewer departments from the general account, stating these taxes should be paid from the department funds.

Bills were approved for payment in the following amounts: $14,494.79 from the general account; $10,015.99, water department operation; $2,771.52, sewer operation; $4,750 from revenue sharing account.

KEVIN RICKE of the East Moline Legion team prepares to score the seventh run of the game by his club on a single to left by Mike Kandis in second inning of the nightcap against Dixon at Reynolds Field Tuesday. East Moline Legion blasts Dixon Dukes 10-0 and 11-1

By JIM FOX
Telegraph Sports Writer
The Duke Express has been slowed down, but far from derailed as Dixon dropped a doubleheader to a tough East Moline American Legion team 10-0 and 11-1 at Reynolds Field Tuesday evening. The two losses snap Dixon's win streak at five games.

Power was the main factor in the first game, as East Moline hit four home runs in the first two innings off losing pitcher John Kemp. Kevin Ricke shot a solo homer out in the first inning to give Steve Eddy all the runs he needed in coasting to his second victory of the season, a one-hit shutout.

Mike Kandis, Eddy and Bill Mosley each parked a Kemp pitch over the left field fence in the second frame as the Legion team took an 8-0 lead. Eddy fanned 10 Dukes in the five-inning game, called because of the 10-run rule. The only hit of the opener for Dixon was a two-out single in the third by Dan Kopacz.

Mike Morrissey relieved Kemp in the second inning and hurled three plus innings of fine baseball, giving up two runs on only three hits against a competitive East Moline team that had a 1-1 with two semi-pro teams before meeting the Dukes.

In the nightcap, East Moline pushed seven runs across in the first two frames in posting an 11-1 verdict behind the strong pitching of Marty Dubuisson. The Legion lefthander struck out 16 Dukes, while walking five and hitting one batter in picking up his first win of the season.

East Moline jumped on starting and losing pitcher Greg Dogwiler for four runs in the first inning on just two hits. The first run of the second game scored on a double steal as Brian Nolan crossed the plate on a throw down to second. Kandis drove home another run on an RBI single to left. A sacrifice fly and an error produced the final runs of the first frame.

Three more tallies were plated in the second as Ricke highlighted the inning with a run-producing double. Another sacrifice fly drove home the second run while Kandis singled to center to chase Ricke across with the seventh Legion run of the game.

Dubuisson held Dixon to one hit—a two-out single to center off the bat of rightfielder Mark Appelman in the fifth. The Dukes scored their lone run of the night in the second inning. Doug Devine was hit by a pitch, advanced two bases on a wild pitch and a passed ball and scored when Legion catcher Jerry Shackelford tried to pick him off third and threw the ball into left field.

Vince Melendrez took over for Dogwiler in the fourth and pitched three innings of solid relief ball. Melendrez was touched for three runs on three hits in his short stint of work.

Although Dixon was beaten twice, the team received praise from Chuck Koney, a Boston Red Sox scout who was in Dixon looking at Eddy pitch. "They did a nice job out there," commented Koney after the initial loss. "You have to remember that this East Moline team has played together for two and three years and they are experienced and stabilized."

"Dixon looks like a team that plays together, and they are a competitive team. This is also a young squad so they should be real good in the next couple years as they compete together. Dixon handled themselves well and they are a lively team. You can tell they are well coached."

With only two hits in two games, the Dukes' bats should be ready to roll in the conference opener Thursday afternoon at Reynolds Field against a good Franklin Center team. Dixon will be out after its sixth victory overall and first conference in the opening game of the doubleheader that is scheduled to get underway at 4 p.m.

Bears sign Payton

CHICAGO (AP) — "We're going into the season of 1975 knowing we'll be trouble for any team we play," Chicago Bears general manager Jim Finks said shortly after signing his No. 1 draft pick, Walter Payton of Jackson State.

Financial and longevity terms of the contract were not disclosed. The highly-sought running back was also reported to be negotiating with the Canadian and World Football leagues.

Finks said the signing of the 5-foot-11, 205-pound back is a giant step in the rebuilding of the Bears who finished with a 4-10 mark in 1974, last in the National Football League's Central Division.

Payton, who was the fourth player selected in the NFL draft, finished his college career as the all-time NCAA leading scorer with 464 points while rushing for 3,563 yards on 584 carries for a career average of 6.1 yards per try. He also caught 27 passes for 474 yards and scored 66 touchdowns.

A Bears spokesman said Finks by Bud Holmes of Hattiesburg, Miss., a lawyer and agent for Payton, that the star running back agreed to terms.

New Coach Jack Pardee said, "With Payton, a healthy Carl Garrett, Cid Edwards, Greg Latta and the new linemen, I think it's safe to say the Bears will have a much better attack next season. We can now get down to concentrating on 1975 with Walter in the fold. We went into the draft looking for offensive help and Payton. I guess, that completes that process. He was by far the best runner in college."

"We're going to keep improving," he added. "We think adding Nemiah Wilson to our secondary, Mike Hartenstein and others from the draft to return spots on defense, and the return man in Virgil Livers unquestionably helps those areas of our team."

The Bears also announced Tuesday the acquisition of veteran tackle Grady Alderman from the Minnesota Vikings.

Alderman, 6-foot-2 and 247 pounds, has missed only six National Football League games in a 15-year pro career that includes three Super Bowl appearances and six in the Pro Bowl.

Last year, Alderman, 36, was the Vikings' offensive team captain.

Pardee described Alderman as a smart and well conditioned lineman who "will give us competition, experience and depth" at the tackle position.

Alderman began his pro career in 1959 with Detroit

Bud Harn, Hy Brides, Clyde Yount Jr. and Utley Noble Jr., combined for a 120 to claim the championship of a best two-ball foursome at the Dixon Country Club Tuesday. Ron Hodapp, Jim Curtis, John Douglas and Vince Rutt took second with 122.

Don Mewhirter, Brad Ludwig, Larry Sullivan and John Loos grabbed third with 127, while Gene Krahenbuhl, Robert Jacobson, Dean Harrison and Harold Rhodes were fourth at 127.

Blind Bogey winner was Neal Peterson with 82 followed by Dr. George Balste 87, William Blazek 87, Joe Heaton, 87, Charles Kested 88, Laurin Williamson 88, Jim Hey 88 and Larry Wilson 94.

Eagles win 3-2

B78-13 BLACKWALL

All-Weather 78

Goodyear's All-Weather 78 is built with polyester cord that's first tempered in an exclusive Goodyear process to set the cord at optimum strength and resilience. The wide 78-series tread is "reverse molded," a technique borrowed from race tire production. In reverse molding, the contour of the tread surface is slightly concave as it comes from the mold—so that when the tire is inflated, the tread makes full, flat contact with the road. And the rib-type tread design is well grooved, with plenty of traction edges to provide decisive grip. In every detail, our All-Weather 78 gives you honest quality, at a price that's in step with the time.

Rice whacks three-run homer Pole blanks the Sox 4-0

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer
Dick Pole, an unheralded right-hander from Trout Creek, Mich., thinks he's found the secret to success in the major leagues.
"He's always had the arm and now he's got the eye, too. He's switched to contact lenses."
"I think the contact lenses are a big help because I see the plate much better now," said Pole after pitching Boston past Chicago 4-0 Tuesday night.
Pole, who donned his recently acquired contacts for the first time Tuesday night, has been on and off, mostly off, with the Red Sox since 1973. He had never pitched a complete game before but, on the strength of his three-hit, eight-strikeout shutout, he appears set in Boston's starting rotation, for a while anyway.

Rookie Jim Rice provided Pole with all the offense he needed by clubbing a three-run homer off Lloyd Allen, 0-1, in the first inning. It was Rice's ninth homer of the season. Juan Beniquez singled home an insurance run in the fifth.
Royals 5, Indians 2
John Mayberry knocked in two runs with a homer and single and Al Cowens contributed a two-run single as Kansas City made it 10 victories in the last 11 games. Dennis Leonard, 2-1, won it with a six-hitter and Fritz Peterson, 4-5, lost it.
Brewers 5, A's 4
Pedro Garcia hit a two-run double and John Briggs raced home with the game-winning on a wild pitch by Richard Todd in the sixth for Milwaukee. Reggie Jackson homered for the A's who dropped out of first, one-half game behind Kansas City, in the AL West.

Orioles 6, Rangers 3
Dave Duncan backed the nine-hit pitching of Mike Torrez with a three-run homer and Tommie Davis and Lee May added run-scoring singles for Baltimore. Torrez, 6-3, picked up his first win since May 14. The Rangers, who lost for the ninth time in 10 games, played without disgruntled outfielder Willie Davis, who never showed up for the game.
Yankees 5, Twins 4
Bobby Bonds blasted his 12th homer of the season and Alex Johnson pinch-hit a two-run double in the eighth for New York. Bonds' homer marked the 29th time in his career he has led off with a home run in his team's first at-bat, breaking the major league record he shared with Eddie Yost. Steve Brye and Rod Carew homered for Minnesota.

Tigers 8, Angels 5
Detroit exploded for five runs in the ninth to win it. Bill Freehan and Dan Meyer singled home on run each and Gary Sutherland knocked in two. Willie Horton homered, his 12th, for Detroit and Lee Stanton hit one for California.
National League
Ron Reed didn't know where he was going ... but he certainly had the right direction on his pitches.
"Reed, a longtime member of the Atlanta Braves, started against his old teammates Tuesday night as a member of the St. Louis Cardinals and admittedly almost walked into the wrong dugout by sheer force of habit.
But he got straightened out after a while, and so did his pitches, as he led the Cardinals to a 4-2 victory.
"A couple of times after the third inning I started toward the Atlanta dugout," Reed said. "Then I said, 'Wait a minute. You're wearing the white uniform tonight.'"
Reed, 5-5, who was acquired last week by the Cardinals, permitted the Braves 11 hits and two unearned runs before getting last-out relief help from Al Hrabosky.
Ron Fairly's seventh-inning homer triggered a three-run rally that helped Reed beat his ex-mates. The Cardinals, held to four hits through six innings, erupted as Fairly tagged Atlanta starter Buzz Capra, 4-7, for his second home run of the season.
Luis Melendez followed with a triple to the wall in right-center field. Ken Reitz doubled home Melendez and Reitz scored on Biff Pocoroba's error at home to cap the rally.
Phillies 12, Padres 1
Mike Schmidt and Greg Luzinski tagged a pair of home runs and drove in nine runs between them as Philadelphia beat San Diego.
"This is something we've been waiting for—a bust-out," said Luzinski, who knocked in four runs and boosted his home run total to 10 for the season.
Reds 8, Pirates 4
Joe Morgan belted a bases-loaded triple in the fourth inning to lead Cincinnati and Gary Nolan over Pittsburgh.
Dodgers 6, Expos 5
Dave Lopes' two-run double in the eighth inning provided the winning runs as Los Angeles' Don Sutton became the National League's first 10-game winner with his victory over Montreal.
Mets 4, Astros 3
Dave Kingman walloped a three-run homer and Bob Apodaca provided sparkling relief work to help New York beat Houston.

Cubs win as Madlock stars

CHICAGO (AP) — Bill Madlock stood half stripped in front of his locker, a wide grin splitting his round face, trying to explain his "most dramatic day" and the 1975 Chicago Cubs.
Madlock's leadoff homer in the ninth inning enabled the Cubs to climb into a 5-5 tie with the San Francisco Giants Tuesday and his run-scoring double in the 10th gave the Cubs their first victory over San Francisco this season.
It was also their first extra-inning encounter of the season and assured them of their first place hold on the National League East.
"Honest, I wasn't trying for a home run," said Madlock, whose only other homer this year came April 30. "Jose (Cardenal) told me (Randy) Moffitt keeps the ball low and try to hit it up the middle. He got a little high with the pitch and it really sailed. I did the same thing in the 10th inning, just tried to go up the middle."

After Moffitt had given up a walk to Don Kessinger and winning pitcher Geoff Zahn had sacrificed, Dave Heaverlo, the Cubs' shaved-headed pitcher came in. Heaverlo issued a walk to Cardenal and Madlock went up the middle with a double to right center to win the game.
"This was the most exciting and thrilling thing that has happened to me," said Madlock.
"Last year I got a pinch hit grand slam off Don Sutton but that didn't win the game. This meant something. This is the type of game we would have lost a year ago. But this team doesn't quit."
"The difference," continued Madlock, "is when we blew a lead or fell behind last year, that was the end of it. Not this year."
The Cubs jumped to a 3-0 lead in the first inning. Starting pitcher Ray Burris balked in the fourth but that's all the Giants could get until the seventh.

Darold Knowles took over from Burris at the start of the seventh and was tagged for successive singles by Derrell Thomas, Gary Thomasson and Bruce Miller for one run. Then he walked Bobby Murcer to load the bases. He struck out Glenn Adams but errors by shortstop Rob Sperring and second baseman Manny Trillo led to a 5-3 edge for the Cubs.
The Cubs got one run back in the bottom of the seventh on a single by Cardenal, a stolen base a passed ball and an infield out.
"That's the run that really hurt," said Manager Wes Westrum of the Giants. "It's a run they shouldn't have had. Without it, the homer in the ninth wouldn't have meant anything. It was a heartbreaker to lose."

While Westrum thought it a heartbreaker, Cub Manager Jim Marshall considered it a redeemer.
"We had a bad game defensively," said Marshall. "And you're going to have days like that. But when you can play poorly and still win, that's something."
Marshall also harked back to the recent West Coast trip which ended with a 9-7 loss to the Giants after the Cubs had held an early 7-1 lead.
"If there were any thoughts about that game where we blew a 7-1 lead, this game would erase them," said Marshall. "Sure, Madlock won it for us but it was a game where certain players picked up other players and that's important. If we had lost, certain mistakes would have stood out. Now that we won, they're forgotten."

The Cubs, who have now won five of their last seven games, will be shooting for their third straight series win when they face the Giants again today.
Rick Reuschel, 4-5, is scheduled to pitch for the Cubs against John Montefusco, 3-2. The series against the Giants and the current homestand will end Thursday.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE D-675: Delbert G., aged 42, is an insurance manager.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "I am puzzled by some of my younger salesmen."

"Although I teach them the exact sales talk that I employ when dealing with strange prospects on the phone, they don't win half the number of interviews that I get!"

"So what can be the difficulty, for they are college men and with good telephone voices?"

Hidden Persuaders
Many of you will recall Vance Packard's splendid book entitled "The Hidden Persuaders."

It describes many subconscious influences that lead us up to a conscious decision.

In Delbert's situation, some of those hidden persuaders were the nuances in the tones used by his younger salesmen.

Although they recited the very same sales speech when trying to arrange appointments via the telephone, there was a marked difference.

In my courses on the "Psychology of Advertising" which I taught at Northwestern University, I would previously tape the sales talk of an insurance manager vs. that of his salesmen.

But without telling my students which was which, I'd then play these tapes before the class and ask the students to pick out which voice was that of the manager.

They could usually detect the manager very easily. Why? Because his voice held the overtones or nuances that indicated he was the boss, rather than an employee!

Thus, when an insurance prospect was called on the phone, the prospect felt he was dealing with the "boss man" when Delbert was at the other end of the line.

And this inflated the ego of the prospect, so he also felt more confident of what Delbert was saying and thus was more likely to consent to a personal interview.

Christ's listeners also said, "He speaks as one having authority!"

These shades of our voice also go a long way in determining which of two friends a girl may select for a husband.

For women are especially impressed by male authority.

And why youngsters will pay more heed to their father's commands than to the same orders that they get from mamma.

Even mamma's first nagging calls to come to the table for dinner may be disregarded by children.

But when she grows irate, they subconsciously realize that if her voices reaches a certain pitch, the next half-tone rise will produce a paddling.

So the children likewise react to vocal evidence of authority, even subconsciously.

Even the comic strip hero called the Phantom, makes all the creatures of the jungle tremble, when he uses a tone of cold fury!

And it isn't just loudness that suggests authority but also a certain nuance that denotes sincerity, plus 100 per cent belief in what the speaker says.

THINKING OF CORN STORAGE? THINK ABOUT HARVESTORE

HARVESTORE AND HIGH MOISTURE CORN HAVE THESE ADVANTAGES:

EARLY-FAST HARVEST get the corn out of the field early with no delays for a dryer. NO DRYING COSTS — University figures show that 10% of the cash cost of producing a corn crop is drying.

WHY SPEND 10¢ A BUSHEL TO REDUCE CORNS FEED VALUE?

INCREASED DIGESTIBILITY HARVESTORE stored high moisture corn has been proven in university trials to be 10% more digestible than dry corn.

[THIS MEANS IT'S WORTH 30¢ MORE A BUSHEL]

COST: There's not as much difference between Harvestore and other types of storage. CHECK BEFORE YOU BUY.

FINANCING AVAILABLE: AgriStor finances Harvestores and related equipment with term loans up to 12 years.

SYSTEMS TO FEED HIGH MOISTURE CORN: Particularly new systems to feed high moisture corn to hogs.

Outlook for hog prices good

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hog producers can expect good market prices for their animals at least through early 1976, mainly because of sharp cut-backs in breeding herds since last summer, the Agriculture Department says.

Pork output in the first quarter of this year fell 10 per cent below year-earlier levels and the reduction will be greater during the April-June quarter, the department's Outlook and Situation Board said Monday.

"Reduced slaughter supplies this year reflect the profit squeeze experienced by pork producers last year," the board said in a summary of a report to be issued later this month. "In addition, rapidly rising corn prices last year made the cash grain market a more profitable alternative to feeding hogs for those producers who raise their own feed."

Looking toward the second half of 1975, the report said pork output could be down 15 to 17 per cent from July-December of last year, reflecting a smaller pig crop this spring. Further, officials said, the decline could be even more if hog producers hold back more females to begin rebuilding breeding herds.

"This could happen if corn prices were to drop sharply this summer and fall in response to a bumper feed grain crop," the report said.

Farm prices of hogs sold for slaughter on May 15 averaged $45.10 per 100 pounds, more than double the year-earlier mark, according to a USDA price report issued last Friday.

Market hog prices this summer "likely will average the highest since the summer of 1973 at $45 to $47 per 100 pounds and peak over $50" during July-September, the report Monday said.

"Hog prices are likely to decline some during the fall, even though the seasonal increase in pork production from summer to fall likely will be less than usual this year," officials said.

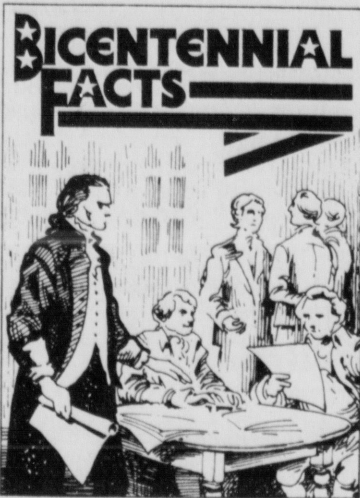

Another reason for the strong hog prices this spring is that cattle prices also have risen the past couple of months, due mainly to reduced supplies of grain-fed cattle and a diversion of many to spring pastures instead of going to slaughter.

The department noted that in March hog producers in key states indicated they would reduce their next fall's pig crop 17 per cent from a year earlier. Those are the pigs which will provide pork for the consumer market in early 1976.

"Hog farmers are not likely to expand farrowing operations significantly until the 1975 corn harvest is assured and (grain) prices move lower," the report said.

"It now appears that if this year's feed crop is big enough to reduce corn prices, the initial expansion could begin with the Dec. 1975-Feb. 1976 pig crop, with larger increases in March-May. However, these hogs will not enter the slaughter market until mid-1976."

When in 1619 the Crown-appointed governor of the Jamestown, Virginia colony admitted incompetence, he was instructed to select two men from each borough to form a government. The men named themselves the House of Burgesses and came to be the first self-governing body in America. Burgesses were to be elected "by the inhabitants." Because an inhabitant was never properly defined, it came to mean he was a taxpayer or an able-bodied male over 16, and servants, free and indentured. The colony got used to popular franchise — unheard of in voting England where property had to be owned. The World Almanac reports.

Record album by NIU jazz ensemble praised

DE KALB "Stan Kenton sat there listening to the whole album, all 44 minutes, and didn't say a word," recalls Ron Modell. "When it was over, he looked at me and said, 'This is thrilling. It's really thrilling.'"

Maynard Ferguson also got an advance chance to hear the album in his home and called the music "memorable" and "exciting."

Charles Suber, editor of Downbeat Magazine, heard the album during a business trip and commented, "Using any criteria of performance and composition, this is a professional album. And besides, it swings."

The album prompting the raves, it turns out, is performed and largely written by young musicians in their late teens and early 20s who make up the Northern Illinois University Jazz Ensemble, directed by Modell.

Entitled "Fly by Night," the album is the second by the ensemble, which Modell founded in 1969 when he started a jazz studies program at Northern.

Modell's program became firmly established so quickly that the late Duke Ellington, in his autobiography, Music Is My Mistress, listed NIU's Jazz Ensemble among the top seven collegiate groups in the nation. That's high praise indeed, considering that nearly every university and college and even many junior and community colleges have climbed onto the jazz or show band wagon in recent years.

Still, Modell feels his group is improving each year and as Rich Matteson states on the album's cover notes, "It is more than just another college jazz band album. It presents the playing and writing of some great, young, talented people who could become very well known in the next few years."

Or, to quote Kenton again, "The originality, creativity, musicianship and performance of this album are of the highest quality. But you, as the leader, have made the most important contribution!" he wrote Modell.

Baritone sax player Bruce Johnstone, a member of Ferguson's orchestra, wrote that he "was extremely impressed" with "the musicality, the musicianship, the production, the programming and the excellent writing" and trumpeter Lew Soloff of Blood, Sweat and Tears added, "Rarely, if ever in my life, have I heard a college band with such a high level of soloists, in addition to its great ensemble playing."

The new album, recorded during 11 hours of taping at Lake Geneva, Wis., features nine numbers, seven arranged by ensemble members and four of them original student compositions.

Two of the works were done by twin brothers Greg and Gary Tipps of Crystal Lake, including the title piece, "Fly by Night," written by trumpeter Greg, Gary, who plays tenor sax and clarinet with the 24-member group, contributed a new arrangement for Chick Corea's tune, "Sea Journey."

Lead trumpet player Mark Ohlsen provided another original work, "Pelvic Thrust," which is a tribute to the late Chicago jazz artist, Bill Chase, who traveled with the NIU band last year and developed a close friendship with Ohlsen.

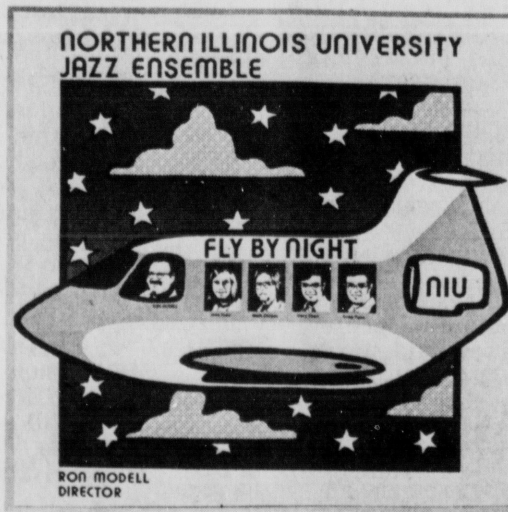

Ohlsen's trumpet artistry is so impressive, in fact, Modell notes that the young Moline musician has standing job offers with Kenton's, Ferguson's and Woody Herman's bands after he graduates next year.

Almost all of the second side of the album is devoted to two new arrangements and two original compositions by bass trombonist John Todd of Mount Prospect.

The original works are called "Time for a Change" and "Opus Thorchis" and the new charts are arrangements to accompany vocalist Tobee Tyler of East Dubuque, who now is in Los Angeles showcasing her talents.

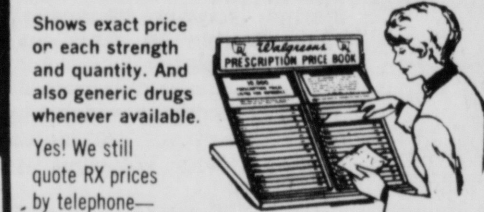

A junior, the 20-year-old Todd already has turned out two new original works since this album was recorded and his "Time for a Change" has just been published by Opus Music of Chicago.

Most of the students featured on the first ensemble recording in 1973 are now teaching or playing professionally. Modell notes, listing trombonist Larry McCabe in Ferguson's orchestra, drummer Tom Kincaid on the road with country singer Eddie Arnold and saxophonist Jimmy Johnson leading his own group based in Du Page County.
